Fleischmann Congratulates Oak Ridge

Representative Chuck Fleischmann congratulated The City of Oak Ridge on being designated as one of 18 American World War II Heritage Cities across the United States. This designation is the result of nearly two years of Congressman Fleischmann's work with the U.S. Department of the Interior to have Oak Ridge's significant contribution to winning World War II recognized permanently. "Oak Ridge played one of the most important roles of any city or community in the United States during World War II. The work conducted at Oak Ridge to develop the Manhattan Project was instrumental for our nation to triumph over evil during the War," said Congressman Fleischmann. "Oak Ridge's legacy has already been enshrined by the establishment of the Manhattan Project National Park, and the National Park Service's designation of Oak Ridge as an American World War II Heritage City will further preserve the city's legacy for countless generations of future Americans. I am proud to have led the Tennessee Congressional Delegation to have Oak Ridge designated our state's one and only American World War II Heritage City." The American World War II Heritage Cities Program honors the contributions of local towns, cities, and counties. It commemorates the stories of the men, women, and children whose bravery and sacrifices shaped the U.S. home front during World War II and still impact our nation today. Only one American World War II Heritage City can be designated in each state or territory. Oak Ridge played a critical role in history and has been designated Tennessee's American World War II Heritage City through the program.
